Adjournment
Dear Colleagues:

It is my pleasure to present this listing of scholarly achievements by the faculty of the University of Illinois Springfield, and I hope you will take a few moments to review the entire compilation. It represents academic publications and presentations delivered in state, regional, national, and international venues during the 2013 calendar year, and it’s an impressive array. Taken as a whole, the annual listing is a tangible reflection of our abiding commitment to a true teacher-scholar model, in which scholarship and teaching are realized as mutually enlivening and enriching activities.

As you know, we traditionally limit entries in the annual listing to peer-reviewed publications and presentations, which are the time-honored, public forms of faculty scholarship. Nevertheless, we also know that faculty members engage in many other scholarly activities that contribute to the generation and dissemination of new knowledge and to the development of their academic disciplines and professional fields. The value of these activities, including but not limited to manuscript review and selection, serving on editorial boards, and organizing conference panels, should never be underestimated. Such engagement is also a well-recognized mark of the teacher-scholar.

The teacher-scholar model is, indeed, alive here at UIS, and in the spirit of celebrating excellence in scholarship, I extend sincere congratulations on all of your scholarly accomplishments in 2013, and best wishes for your continuing success.

Lynn Pardie
Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs and Provost

Dr. David Bertaina, associate professor of History, is an exceptional teacher and an outstanding emerging scholar in the field of comparative religion. He has been recognized for his expertise in Middle Eastern religious literature and in Muslim-Christian interactions during the Late Antique and Medieval periods, and he is a member of the American Academy of Religion, the American Oriental Society, the North American Society for Christian Arabic Studies, and the Society of Biblical Literature.

Professor Bertaina's scholarship involves the study of Syriac and Arabic religious literature from the Late Antique and Medieval Middle East. He is currently conducting research on the Arabic writings of a medieval Muslim convert to Coptic Christianity, in preparation for a new work, titled Apostasy and Conversion in Medieval Egypt: Bulus ibn Raja on Islam. Colleagues in the field have praised him for the very high quality of his research and the groundbreaking nature of his contributions to Islamic Studies. Since joining the faculty of the University of Illinois at Springfield Dr. Bertaina has been an extraordinarily productive scholar, publishing a monograph and an extensive array of book chapters, peer-reviewed articles in leading journals, book reviews, encyclopedia entries, and translations. He has also presented numerous papers at international and national academic conferences in his field.

Professor Bertaina is also known as a passionate, reflective, and engaging teacher who values active learning strategies and skillfully links learning to the demands and dilemmas of contemporary life in a global context. He teaches courses at all levels of the curriculum, including core methods and capstone courses, as well as electives within the History major and the Comparative Societies and Global Awareness components of our general education curriculum. It is also noteworthy that Professor Bertaina teaches very successfully in online as well as on-campus modes of course delivery, enlivening the learning process by incorporating multifaceted experiential learning activities, the creative use of multimedia, and course-relevant travel abroad into his courses. He is an outstanding example of the teacher-scholar ideal.
