An Introduction to Google Reader

Google Reader is a Google App that allows users to access all the news they want to see in one location. Subscribe to tons of feeds, and get all the breaking news right in the center of the screen.

Signing In

To sign into Google Apps for Education,

1. Go to http://go.uis.edu/google
2. Select Continue. Log in with your NetID and password.
3. Click More, then Reader.
The Google Reader Interface

Subscribing to Feeds

1. To subscribe to a new feed, select Subscribe.

2. Enter a search term to find your subscription, and click Add.

3. Scroll through the list of subscriptions that appear. To subscribe to a new subscription, click Subscribe.

Your news from your subscriptions will appear in the center of your Home page.

Your list of subscriptions
There are also several options available on the home page for users to explore various subscriptions that may interest them:

1. To access your subscriptions, you can select them directly from the center of your home page, or select them under your subscription list.

2. The most recent news will then appear in the center of your screen for the selected subscription.

Accessing Readings

1. To access your subscriptions, you can select them directly from the center of your home page, or select them under your subscription list.

2. The most recent news will then appear in the center of your screen for the selected subscription.
3. Underneath the stories in the subscriptions, users can star items by click the star icon or Email the article to others.