A representative from Montana State University will discuss the effect of federal health-care reforms on college students on Tuesday, Feb. 1, at the University of Illinois Springfield.

James Mitchell, director of the Student Health Service at Montana State in Bozeman, will speak from 4:30 to 6 p.m. in Brookens Auditorium.

He will give an overview of the legislation and describe how student insurance plans will be affected.

Free cholesterol, blood sugar and body fat analyses will be offered from 3 to 4:30 p.m. and from 6 to 6:30 p.m. in the Concourse area outside Brookens.
