I. Approval of Minutes of November 28, 2011

Page 1 #II Paragraph 3: Harshavardhan Bapat also needs to be left out of the confidential vote of how to get colleges to step up with creating and teaching new courses.

Change the wording in page 2 Paragraph 1 to: "The syllabus is often thought to be an agreement between the instructor and the student which includes communication, content, objectives and policies."

ACTION: Richard Gilman-Opalsky motioned to approve the minutes with changes made. Peter Shapinsky seconded the motion. All were in favor.

II. Freshman Seminar Workshop and Spring 2013 Review Process

The Council was asked to make a decision regarding how Freshman Seminar course syllabi should be processed. There was much discussion whether syllabi should be reviewed by a separate committee at the end of the workshops or for the workshops themselves to be utilized for the review process.

There will be five workshops in the spring, 2012 in order to help instructors write their syllabi according to the Learning Outcomes of the Freshman Seminar Course Criteria. The Office of Undergraduate Education is providing support for training sessions; however help is needed by GEC members in running exercises and activities possibly in small groups, especially for the January 13th syllabus workshop.

Action: GEC members are to let Karen Moranski know if they are interested in helping during the workshops, especially the January 13th syllabus workshop.

It was also discussed when the Council would like to approval the final syllabi. If the syllabi are worked on from the very first workshop, instructors will have time to bring them back to other training sessions. The last workshop is designed to make last minute changes with help by GEC. Then Council can review and approve them during their April, 2012 meetings. That way if there are any that need more work done, the instructors will have time during the summer to complete them. Training begins January 13 and finishes in March. Council must get through them in April to be ready for fall classes.

During the mid-semester of the teaching year, it was suggested to offer special support sessions for instructors.

Action: there was a consensus to utilize the workshop to review syllabi rather than have a separate committee meeting at the end of the semester.

Action: A motion by Peter Shapinsky was made to officially vote to approve the block of syllabi at the end of the workshops during the April Gen Ed Council meeting. The vote was a unanimous approval.

It is to note that the issue of deadlines be addressed during the workshops. Karen Moranski will bring that matter to the instructors.

III. Student Petitions

Comparative Societies-Humanities comparison to PHL 201 from John Wood Community College, Quincy

A hand-out was given to Council members for evaluating policy in regard to transfer courses proposed to fit in with the Gen Ed curriculum.

In the past if they fit into an IAI category, Karen Moranski and the GEC chair would approve the petition. If GEC takes on all the petitions that come into the Office of Undergraduate Education, that's all they will do as UGE gets them almost every day.

A vote was requested for all transfer petitions wanting ECCE credit go to the full Council or only the ones that are not a clear fit.

Action: 1. Donna Bussell motioned to have Karen sign off on all syllabi that are IAI compatible. Erin Lesko seconded. All in were in favor.

Action 2: Donna Bussell motioned that those syllabi that do not fit into IAI are to be brought to the full Council. Erin Lesko seconded. All were in favor.
