Adjournment
Dear Colleagues:

It is my pleasure to present this listing of scholarly achievements by the faculty of the University of Illinois Springfield. As you review the entire compilation, you will see that it represents academic publications and presentations delivered in state, regional, national, and international venues during the 2015 calendar year, and it is an impressive array. The annual listing is a tangible reflection of our continual abiding commitment to the teacher-scholar model, in which scholarship and teaching are realized as mutually enlivening and enriching activities.

As you know, we traditionally limit entries in the annual listing to peer-reviewed publications and presentations, which are the time-honored, public forms of faculty scholarship. Nevertheless, we also know that faculty members engage in many other scholarly activities that contribute to the generation and dissemination of new knowledge and to the development of their academic disciplines and professional fields. The value of these activities, including but not limited to manuscript review and selection, external grants and reports, serving on editorial boards, and organizing conference panels, should never be underestimated. Such engagement is also a well-recognized mark of the teacher-scholar.

The teacher-scholar model is, indeed, alive here at UIS, and in the spirit of celebrating excellence in scholarship, I extend sincere congratulations on all of your scholarly accomplishments in 2015, and best wishes for your continuing success.

Jim Ermatinger

PSYCHOLOGY

Dr. Peter Shapinsky, Associate Professor of History, exemplifies the teacher-scholar model at UIS. He is regarded as one of the foremost authorities in the fields of Medieval Japan and East Asian maritime history. A versatile, interdisciplinary scholar, and fluent in Japanese, Dr. Shapinsky is an expert on piracy in medieval Japan.

Professor Shapinsky is actively engaged in continuing scholarship to expand the breadth and depth of his work. Nominator and reviewers alike point to his monograph, Lords of the Sea: Pirates, Violence, and Commerce in Late Medieval Japan as a significant work. This work has generated a new conceptualization of pirates as Sea Lords in medieval Japanese history, drawing parallels between the ruling of land and of sea. Professor Shapinsky has shown them to be equivalent to the Feudal Lords on land, inasmuch as the Sea Lords also managed economic development and trade. Such reconceptualization of an area of study is one of the most fruitful of scholarly achievements, allowing future researchers to see a topic through a new lens or in a new frame or context. Other publications include several peer-reviewed book chapters, journal articles, and English translation of Japanese scholarship. Dr. Shapinsky has also delivered papers at national conferences, as well as numerous invited lectures and presentations at national and international venues. He has an active on-going scholarly agenda that includes new interpretations of cartographic history in the East Asian maritime world.

Professor Shapinsky’s students and colleagues credit his creative, dynamic teaching and mentoring, contagious enthusiasm for his subject, and eagerness to help them succeed, with motivating them to reach their potential. He has developed a comprehensive, stimulating, and diverse History curriculum; and he teaches core and elective courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels in the History Department, courses that fulfill General Education requirements, and courses for the Capital Scholars Honors Program. Professor Shapinsky’s teaching utilizes both on ground and online modes of delivery, and has included a study abroad trip to Japan.
