Reflections on Scholarship .................... Provost Papini

Adjournment
Dear Colleagues:

Discovery is one of the most exciting and motivating forces in the life of a teacher-scholar. Though the theories and methodologies that guide our efforts to better understand ourselves and the world around us continue to evolve, the core of academic life is guided by the pursuit of knowledge in all of its incredible forms and functions. Today, it is my pleasure to present this listing of scholarly achievements by the faculty of the University of Illinois Springfield. As you review the entire compilation, you will see that it represents academic publications and presentations delivered in state, regional, national, and international venues during the 2016 calendar year, and it is an impressive array. The annual listing is a tangible reflection of our continual abiding commitment to the teacher-scholar model, in which scholarship and teaching are realized as mutually enlivening and enriching activities. What is most unique about the scholarly profile at our great university is the extent to which students, both undergraduate and graduate, are actively engaged in processes of discovery in and out of the classroom. This not only speaks well of our embrace of the teacher-scholar model, but is perfectly aligned with our stated institutional values and mission.

As you know, we traditionally limit entries in the annual listing to peer-reviewed publications and presentations, which are the time-honored, public forms of faculty scholarship. Nevertheless, we also know that faculty members engage in many other scholarly activities that contribute to the generation and dissemination of new knowledge and to the development of their academic disciplines and professional fields. The value of these activities, including but not limited to manuscript review and selection, external grants and reports, serving on editorial boards, and organizing conference panels, should never be underestimated. Engagement in discovery activities such as these are also a well-recognized mark of the teacher-scholar.

The teacher-scholar model is, indeed, alive here at UIS, and in the spirit of celebrating excellence in scholarship, I extend sincere congratulations on all of your scholarly accomplishments in 2016, and affirm the commitment of everyone in Academic Affairs to your continuing scholarly efforts and professional success.

Dennis R. Papini

Dr. Benjamin Walsh, associate professor of Management, is a scholar who has made substantive contributions to the literature on workplace incivility. As a relatively new addition to the domain of counterproductive work behavior, incivility has gained importance as an emerging area of research in the field of organizational behavior. With a published scale, the Civility Norms Questionnaire-Brief, and numerous presentations and articles published or under review for this topic alone, Dr. Walsh stands as a leading contributor to this important disciplinary area.

Dr. Walsh’s research examines interpersonal treatment in organizations, with a focus on understanding the antecedents and outcomes of workplace incivility and sexual harassment, as well as the effectiveness of interventions designed to prevent workplace mistreatment. He has 17 peer-reviewed journal articles in applied psychology and management journals, such as Journal of Business Ethics, Journal of Occupational Health Psychology, Applied Psychology: An International Review, Stress and Health, and Journal of Business and Psychology. The impact of Dr. Walsh’s work is reflected in the 300+ citations his published research has obtained thus far.
True to the teacher-scholar model, Dr. Walsh approaches teaching as a scholar, using findings in the literature on social learning and training to guide his efforts. He also incorporates his own research interests, where appropriate, into his classes, encouraging students to develop critical thinking skills and an understanding of the research process. He has engaged in careful and thoughtful preparation of courses in organizational behavior and human resource management, teaching at both the undergraduate and graduate levels and via face-to-face and online modes of delivery. Dr. Walsh has been successful in motivating and engaging students in his research projects, including two collaborative community projects. Student perceptions of Professor Walsh’s teaching demonstrate that he is highly regarded, exceeding university, college, and department averages in every category. In addition, he was named the 2015 Outstanding Faculty Member at the UIS Peoria Center.

Dr. Walsh’s achievements in both scholarship and teaching are impressive. In the six years since completing his doctorate, he has shown documented promise of becoming the very best in his field.
